Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education WICHE

WICHE, the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education, is a nonprofit regional organization. It helps the thirteen member states and one affiliated state to work together to provide high-quality, cost-effective programs to meet the education and manpower needs of the West. Member states are Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming; North Dakota is an affiliated state. WICHE's Information Clearinghouse has established this Information Series to provide assistance to higher education and government policymakers in the West.

INTRODUCTION

This report of tuition and fees is the fifth in an annual series published by the WICHE Information Clearinghouse. This year the report is limited to tabular presentations of tuition and fees in public institutions for:

1. community college students,
2. resident undergraduates,
3. nonresident undergraduates,
4. resident graduates, and
5. nonresident graduates.

In each of the five sections, information is presented for six years (1979-80 through 1984-85) along with computations for the one-year percentage change (1983-84 to 1984-85) and five-year percentage change (1979-80 to 1984-85).

At the end of each section, a separate table presents arithmetic means for specific groups of institutions. Percentage changes in the means from year to year are also presented. Standard deviations are included as a possible aid to planning.

This year tuition and fees for North Dakota appear for the first time. California and Idaho do not charge their residents "tuition" as such. Thus, the "tuition and fees" figures for resident students in these states are fees only.

For further information on categories, definitions, and additional detail on trends, policies, etc., please consult the 1983-84 edition of this report, which is still available from WICHE.

National Tuition and Fees

According to the College Cost Book 1984-85, published by the College Board, the national means for resident tuition and fees are $598 at community colleges and $1,126 for undergraduate institutions. Both of these figures are higher than the means for public institutions in the fourteen WICHE states ($527 for community colleges and $1,012 for undergraduate colleges and universities). The figures for community colleges do not include the California community colleges, since a comprehensive list of fees for all 106 campuses for the last six years is not available.

CPI Compared with Tuition and Fees

For the first time since the 1979-80 academic year, the annual increases in tuition and fees for most groups of institutions were smaller than the increase in the Consumer Price Index. Increases in the means for community college and both resident and nonresident undergraduate tuition and fees were less than the increase in the CPI. Table 1 presents changes in tuition and fees in the various sectors and changes in the CPI for comparison.

It should be noted that Table 1 presents percentage increases during the past few years based upon academic years for tuition and fees and upon calendar years for the CPI. Although the years for measurement do not coincide exactly, the percentage increases for both tuition and fees and the CPI do cover roughly the same periods of time and thus illustrate a meaningful comparison.

Changes from Last Year's Report

The reader may note that some of the percentage changes in the following table are different from the figures given in Table 7 of the 1983-84 report. The increase in the CPI for 1982 to 1983 was based on an estimate of the CPI for the 1983 calendar year, since the yearly figure was not available at publication time. In a similar manner, we have estimated the CPI figure for 1984 based on the average of the CPI indices for the middle six months of the 1984 calendar year. Thus, the increase from 1983 to 1984 is an estimate.

Also, some percentage increases and tuition and fees figures for 1983-84 are different from the figures published in the 1983-84 report. When we received the tuition and fees for the current year (1984-85), several respondents adjusted the figures for previous years. Figures in all tables reflect these adjustments. In addition, figures from North Dakota have been included in all summary statistics.
